JOHN QUINCY HUTCHINSON

F o r e w o r d

For years some members of the Hutchinson family have sought to compile a short family history, particularly of the southern West Virginia branch. My uncle, John Newton Hutchinson of Charleston, prepared a history of his immediate family, the descendents of his grandfather, Alexander Hutchinson. This is an effort to widen and extend his history.

He was under the impression that our branch of the family in what is now in the United States came to Massachusetts in 1634 from England in the ship Griffin with ten children. He was further under the impression that one branch of the family came to what is now Loudon County, Virginia, (then Fairfax). This I have not been able to verify. I believe the evidence is almost conclusive that the family came from Ulster, Protestant (northern) Ireland. I have sought from examining the records to trace our family back from southern West Virginia, and have verified that we have descended from George Hutchinson who purchased lands in the Valley of Virginia near Staunton in 1738.

Uncle John Newton may have been correct in assuming that the family lived in Loudon County, Virginia, at one time, but searching the records at Leesburg I could get no definite connection between the numerous Hutchinsons of Loudon and ours in the Valley of Virginia. It was no great distance across the Blue Ridge to the Valley from Loudon County, and it is possible the family may have gone from Loudon to Augusta.

Like most of the early settlers in America, the family scattered and migrated and Hutchinsons may be found in practically every section of the United States.

Records of the early days were fragmentary, and tracing the connections between the different branches of the family is very difficult and in many instances impossible. The relationship among different families in southern West Va. with which we are most familiar, is often difficult to determine. As an illustration, I have not been able to trace the exact relationship between the members of the Mike Hutchinson family of Fayette County and our family of Hutchinsons in Monroe, Greenbrier, Raleigh and Summers, although I am sure they were related.

I am indebted to my Uncle John Newton Hutchinson, to Lou Davidson, of Huntington, West Virginia, a descendant of Alexander Hutchinson, of Monroe County, to Judge Winton A Riffe, of Beckley, an authority on family histories in southern West Virginia, to Henry Hoge Hutchinson, of Delaware, and to many others for much of the information hereinafter contained.

I may add that many of the dates and incidents contained in this booklet may be incorrect. My effort is to aid in preserving as much of the family history as I have, and I trust you will find it substantially accurate.

I am having this little booklet printed so that such information as we have obtained to date may be preserved by having copies of this distributed to the younger members of the family, some of whom, I hope, will later see to the completion of the family records and to the correction of such mistakes as may be contained in this sketch.

JOHN QUINCY HUTCHINSON

BECKLEY, WEST VIRGINIA

AUGUST 1, 1946.

THE NAME "HUTCHINSON"

The American Hutchinsons are descended directly or indirectly from England. The name is there written "Hutchinson." Branches of the family are found in Scotland where the name is ordinarily "Hutcheson." A probable theory of the origin of the name is, that since the name is known in Germany as "Hutcherson," the family originated in Northern Europe, came to France with the Norman invasion of France and to England with the Norman invasion of England in 1606, or direct to England with the Angle or Saxon invasion.

Such theory of the origin of the name is based upon the fact that most names are taken from occupations and that a "hutcher" was the keeper of the "hutch," which was an enclosure for animals, and is French derived from German. "Hutcherson" would be the son of a "hutcher." In England it has been Anglicized taking the ending "inson."

The derivation of the name should be more accurately determined authoritatively.

In the Valley of Virginia, the records carry the name as both "Hutchison" and "Hutchinson."

THE AUGUSTA HUTCHINSONS

Orin F. Morton's history of Monroe County, West Virginia, states that Augusta County was settled from northern Ireland beginning 1732. Morton is authority for the statement that the immigration from Protestant Ulster (northern Ireland) was so rapid a new county in the Valley was authorized in 1738 and organized in 1745. The Augusta portion of the Valley prior to 1745 was part of Orange County. The nucleus of the Scotch-Irish immigration to the Valley was near Staunton. Morton says that within a dozen years following 1732 the Valley was occupied from the old line between Augusta and Frederick to New River, a distance of one hundred and forty miles.

Very evidently the first Hutchinson settlers in the Valley were Protestants from northern Ireland and were part of the general immigration.

The first Hutchinson of Augusta County of whom we have knowledge was John, born 1687, died 1775, and he seems to have come to the Valley with his family prior to 1738. He was the father of George, John, Janet, Frances, William, and probably Mary and Robert. (See P.1 of chart). We find difficulty later in differentiating among the many with like names, particularly John, George, and William.

By the records at Orange we find William Beverley conveyed by deed dated February 20, 1738, 380 acres of land in Beverley Manor, lying on Christian's Creek, to George Hutchinson, and a further deed from Beverley to George Hutchinson of 530 acres.

Robert Hutchinson, in 1739, was conveyed 200 acres in Beverley Manor.

By deed dated July 23, 1740, Beverley conveyed 292 acres of land in Beverley Manor to John Hutchinson.

William Hutchinson was conveyed by Beverley, deed dated May 28, 1741, 570 acres of land "on a branch of Shanadore, Beverley Manner," adjoining George Hutchinson on Christian's Creek.

These are the only deeds we find to Hutchinsons of land now in Augusta County and recorded in Orange.

We note from the records of Orange and Augusta counties that the Hutchinsons, prior to the migration to what is now Monroe County, West Virginia, were conveyed a total of approximately 2500 acres of land, mainly on Christian's Creek in the neighborhood of Tinkling Springs and on the waters of Catawba Creek.

Before the 1770 migration to Monroe we find quite a number of items in the Augusta records concerning the Hutchinsons.

The Frances and Jane will record is dated 1746. June 30 1746, George Hutchinson conveyed 265 acres of land to Alexander Henderson, part of his 530-acre tract. In 1746 he further conveyed to James Clarke 380 acres. August 14, 1753, he and his wife, "Ellener," conveyed 270 acres to John Hutchinson.

November 19, 1755, John Hutchinson was conveyed by William and his wife, "Ann," 240 acres, part of 570-acre grant to William.

In 1757 Alexander Henderson conveyed to John Hutchinson the 265 acres deeded him by George Hutchinson in 1746.

March 14, 1754, John and his wife, "Margaret," made a conveyance to one Craigo. (Evidently the first John Hutchinson).

March 19, 1755, John and his wife, "Mary," (probably John, son of George) made a conveyance to Samuel Henderson.

John Hutchinson (of-the-three-wives) and his wife, Isabella, made a number of conveyances to and including 1767, no others after that date, and one in 1767 describes land on Christian's Creek where he then resided. He lived until 1796.

Many transfers appear on the records of Augusta County following 1770 in which the Hutchinsons figured, particularly Thomas, and the different Williams, Johns, and Georges, kinsmen of those migrating to the west, but none in which the names of "William of Greenbrier," (son of "George of Tinkling Springs") or "John-of-the-Three-Wives" appear.

HUTCHINSONS OF MONROE

From what appears hereinbefore, it seems we may be reasonably sure there migrated from Augusta to Monroe William, (son of George), and his brother, John (of-the-Three-Wives), both with their families. At that time the first John would have been still living at the age of eighty-three; "George of Tinkling Springs" dead three years, his brother William fifty-two years of age, "John-of-the-Three-Wives," (who lived until 1796), forty years of age; his son, "Colonel John," only fifteen years of age, his son William, thirteen years of age; and his son Alexander, eight years of age. The further facts that of the children of John-of-the-Three-Wives, Col. John married Rebecca Hutchinson, daughter of his uncle, "William of Greenbrier"; George married Mary Campbell; William married Mary McClure; Jane married Andrew Wilson; Isaac married Sarah Ballard; Samuel married Margaret Calloway; Alexander married first Eleanor Hutchinson

(another daughter of "William of Greenbrier"), and after her death married Sarah Campbell; and David married Martha Calloway, all Monroe County names, indicate "John-of-the-Three-Wives" moved with all his family to Monroe. As further evidence, there is a statement in the Isaac Hutchinson family Bible that John came to Monroe.

The children of "William of Greenbrier" married as follows: Samuel to Marianne Robinson; Rebecca to John Hutchinson (Col. John); Archibald to Elizabeth Maze; Eleanor to Alexander Hutchinson; Andrew to Sabina Arnot; Jane to John Pack; James to Mary Campbell; and Margaret to Mathias Vanbibber, most, if not all, Monroe County names. This indicates "William of Greenbrier" removed his entire family with him to the new country.

Dr. Callahan's Semi-Centennial History of West Virginia (page 23) says "in 1770 the Manns, Cooks, Millers, Alexanders, Nickells, Campbells, Duns-mores, Hokes, Lakes, Calloways, Sweeneys, Haynes, Erskines, Grahams, and Hutchinsons," largely from the Virginia Valley settled in Greenbrier (now Monroe).

Dr. Ambler, in his history of West Virginia (page 109) says that in the years "immediately following 1769" these families came to what is now Monroe County.

William Hutchinson had a land survey of 500 acres on Indian Creek in the year 1774 and another patented to him for 890 acres on Hans Creek adjoining his 500-acre patent in the year 1788. Alexander Hutchinson in 1791 patented 400 acres on the Elk Lick of Hans Creek, and 190 acres in 1795 between Little and Peters Creeks.

John Hutchinson patented 400 acres on Brush Creek in 1788, and another 50 acres on Brush Creek in 1792.

It must be remembered that often in pioneer days the settler would move on his land, later get it surveyed, have that survey filed, and later a patent issued, and these lands may have been held by the parties named years before the patents were really perfected.

Fifty-four surveys were made in what is now Monroe County, then Botetourt, in 1774, thirty of which were on the Indian and Hans Creeks, indicating there was quite a settlement in the Indian Creek-Hans Creek section prior to 1774.

The court in Botetourt in June, 1774, appointed William Hutchinson and others to view a way for a road from Captain John Stuart's to Second Creek Gap.

We have little direct history on the part the Hutchinsons played in our wars. We know from the Monroe History that William Hutchinson held one Alexander Miller, a Presbyterian minister, prisoner charged with being a Tory, and also he is mentioned as a soldier in the French and Indian Wars and in the Revolution. Morton's history is further authority that this William Hutchinson was a private in Captain Robert Clanahan's Company in Dunsmore's War, and that Andrew Hutchinson was a soldier in the War of 1812, dying near Norfolk about 1814. A number of Hutchinsons were soldiers in the Civil War, and of course in the World Wars.

In the early militia records we find mention that in 1801 John Hutchinson was a colonel, that in 1805 Isaac Hutchinson was a lieutenant, that Alexander Hutchinson was an ensign, and that Archibald was a second lieutenant.

In 1782 the list of personal property holders for that year served as a state census. In that list we have the Hutchinson names of George, John, Sr., John, Jr., William, and William, Jr., as taxpayers. In 1799 the list included Alexander, Andrew, David, Isaac, James, Samuel, William, Jr., and two Johns.

FORMATION OF MONROE COUNTY

In the formation of Monroe County separating it from Greenbrier, the Hutchinson family played the most prominent part. In fact, John Hutchinson, the first clerk of the county, almost by his individual efforts, succeeded in getting a partition of what was then Greenbrier County, setting off the section that is now Monroe and part of Summers Counties as a new county, named Monroe.

For more than ten years there had been considerable agitation for such separation. John Hutchinson was the leader in the movement, (Morton's History, page 105). Col. John Stuart, William H. Cavendish and others resisted. They opposed his reelection to the Assembly in 1798 and were able to defeat him for reelection. Quoting from Morton's History, (page 105);

"... but Hutchinson was astute and resourceful. He undertook a flank move on what, were he living in our own time, he would style the 'Court House Ring'. As a political general of the twentieth century in West Virginia, Hutchinson would have been in his element".

Further quoting from Morton's History, (page 105):

"In the sessions of 1798-9, Hutchinson was present at Richmond as a lobbyist. As a result of his wire-pulling, the legislature passed, January 14, 1799, the act creating the county of Monroe".

Again quoting Morton's History, (page 107):

"Hutchinson lobbied through the Assembly a bill to establish the town of Union and another to relieve the people of Monroe from the Greenbrier taxes of 1799 assessed before Monroe was organized".

The justices met for organization of the county court in the house of George King, May 21, 1799. William Hutchinson qualified as justice and administered the oath to the others.

The family was very influential in the history of Greenbrier County, and the early history of Monroe County. In those days the justices of the peace as part of their duties functioned as does the present day county court. Two William Hutchinsons were justices in 1780, and John Hutchinson in 1791. Those were by appointment, as all justices were appointed until 1852. William and John were again justices in 1799.

John Hutchinson, along with William H. Cavendish, was a delegate to the Virginia Assembly from what was then Greenbrier County from 1793 to 1798.

The first county clerks were by appointment. By such appointment, John Hutchinson was clerk from 1799 to 1808. He was succeeded by his son Isaac who was clerk from 1808 to 1833, and he by John Hutchinson, Jr., from 1833 to 1852, and he in turn by George W. Hutchinson, who was the first clerk to be elected, and who served from 1852 to 1865.

George W. Hutchinson was deputy sheriff under Tristram Patton in 1833.

From Monroe County the descendants of the first Hutchinsons have migrated to other counties of West Virginia and to other states. They have been influential in the formation and government of the different counties of southern West Virginia, particularly Summers and Raleigh. Their line of relationships extend into the Ellisons, the Shumates, the Daniels, Packs, Farleys, Calloways, Cardens, Lowes, Campbells, Millers, Hendersons, Sweeneys, Summerfields, and many other families. They and their relatives, descendants of the Monroe County Hutchinsons, are numerous in practically every southern West Virginia county.

SUMMERS COUNTY HUTCHINSONS

The Hutchinsons who have figured prominently in the affairs of Summers County were, in the main, descendants of Alexander Hutchinson by his second wife, who was a Campbell. There has been a large group of Hutchinsons in the Forest Hill section of what is now Summers County since the Revolution. Reba Hutchinson, a daughter of Alexander, married Isaac Carden and from that union came some of the most influential citizens of Summers, among them John M. Carden, once clerk of the County Court of Summers County, Manley Carden, an educator, Otey Carden, who later represented Wyoming County in the West Virginia legislature, and many others. Isaac Carden once owned what was later known as "Barger's Springs", a summer resort.

Ellender Hutchinson, daughter of Charles Hutchinson and a granddaughter of Alexander, married L. Green Lowe, long prominent in Summers County. They were the parents of William, Walter, and Robert Lowe, each well-known and prominent. Robert was a principal of the High School of Hinton and later went into the Civil Service and now lives at Washington, D. C., or near there.

Henry A. Shumate, another descendant of Alexander Hutchinson served a term as assessor of Summers County.

Michael Hutchinson, son of Adam Hutchinson, was a wealthy and influential resident of Fayette County, near the Summers line, and later of Summers County where he died. Two of his daughters married Millers of Hinton, and one, Mrs. Cundiff, is still living there.

RALEIGH COUNTY HUTCHINSONS

The first Hutchinson to settle in what is now Raleigh County, West Virginia, was Charles, the son of Alexander. Charles migrated to Raleigh from Monroe in 1829. He removed with his family, then consisting of his wife and five children, his father-in-law, the second James Ellison and his family, and his brother-in-law Fieldon Phipps and his family to what is known as the Sand Lick Section. The Ellison and Hutchinson families settled on the left branch of Sand Lick Creek at what is now Stover and the Phipps family on the right branch of Sand Lick. They were followed soon thereafter by Joshua Callaway, who was a brother of the wife of James Ellison, and by Daniel Shumate, whose wife was a sister of James Ellison and an aunt of the wife of Charles Hutchinson. The Calloways and Shumates settled at Trap Hill and on Breckenridge Creek.

Charles Hutchinson and family removed to Crab Orchard in 1848 and in 1856 to the waters of Surveyor's Creek, between what is now Lester and Maple Meadow, the Charles Hutchinson farm lying between farms of his sons David and A. Judson.

The Charles Hutchinson family have a wide range of relationship with other families of southern West Virginia, among them are the Packs, Sweeneys, Calloways, Daniels, Shumates, Ellisons, Summerfields, McGinnises, Farleys, and a number of others.

Charles Hutchinson reared a family of fourteen children. Each reared a family and they have proved prolific. There were one hundred and three grandchildren. By intermarriage with other families the relationship has spread until practically all the older families of the region has Hutchinson kinship.

The Raleigh Hutchinsons and their relatives have been active in the development and administration of Raleigh County.

Fieldon Phipps was the only member of the county court of Fayette County from what is now Raleigh. Daniel Shumate was clerk of the county court of Raleigh County. William T. Shumate was sheriff of Raleigh. James A. Hutchinson, son of Charles, was for many years County Surveyor of Raleigh and did a great deal of surveying in the county during its early period of development.

A. Judson Hutchinson, another son of Charles, was for many years a teacher in the schools of the county and served a term as County Superintendent of schools. His son, John Quincy, was Prosecuting Attorney of Raleigh, 1913-1917, and represented the senatorial district composed of Raleigh, Summers, Monroe and Mercer Counties in the senate of West Virginia, 1929-1933 and has actively practiced his profession as attorney at law at Beckley since taking the A. B. and LL. B. degrees at the West Virginia University in 1907. His brothers, I. Walter and Charles E. were dentists, Walter being the first native of Raleigh County to attend an accredited Dental College.

C. O. Dunn, grandson of Mary Ann, daughter of Charles and Mary E. Hutchinson, was an able attorney for years practicing at Beckley.
